

Linda C. Whye, Ed.D
Biographical Information

Dr. Linda C. Whye is a 1981 graduate of Kentucky State University. She hails from Cleveland, Ohio and moved to Miami, FL to become a teacher with Miami-Dade County Public Schools. Thirty-five years later she has worked as a teacher, reading supervisor, assistant principal and is currently an elementary school principal. She has a M. ED in Reading and an Educational Specialist from Nova Southeastern University. She has a Doctorate in Educational Leadership from Barry University. Dr. Whye has worked extensively with the Kellogg Foundation and the University of Florida on increasing teacher capacity and Harvard University with using data to improve instruction. She has served on the Educational Advisory boards of Barry University and Florida Memorial College. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., Association of Supervision and Curriculum Development and the International Reading Association. She has a love for travel and is an avid quilter. Dr. Whye has a daughter who is a sophomore at Hampton University.